

Facilitators

Palmer Trice (left) and Roger Edwards (right) have been leading the Heart to Heart Marriage Weekend for the past 10 years. The weekend grew out of their own conviction that healthy marriages are deep in God's heart, and that marriage is a central vehicle that God uses to mold us into His image.

Both are counselors and teachers at the Barnabas Center.

Palmer has been married to Lynne for 30 years and they have 3 children.

Roger has been married to Jean for 27 years and they have 7 children.

Shouldn't marriages just get better on their own?

Doesn't every couple:

- Make a little time each day to improve their marriage?
- Make time to talk about everyday things—even those sticky issues that often create tension?
- Find ways to make God central to their marriage?

Of course not! That's why there are marriage weekends. Every couple struggles to find the time and the right environment to talk about the things that matter. And most couples struggle to keep their love for each other primary as they discuss the little things.

Why should I attend?

Heart to Heart is a unique marriage weekend designed to meet each couple at a point of growth. It is a weekend designed not just to teach Biblical principles and truths but to insert them in very practical ways into your relationship. It is a weekend designed to change patterns, marriages, and hearts.

What is Heart to Heart?

The Heart to Heart weekend is built on two pillars –

1. A series of talks that create direction, more than steps, for a better marriage.
2. A series of guided personal conversations between the two of you, shared in intimate confidence.

At no point are couples required to share or interact with other couples regarding personal issues.

Whenever couples talk about their hearts, dreams, hopes, and disappointments, there will be energy.

Heart to Heart is a weekend set up for safe conversations about important and big topics. It is a weekend that brings God into the middle of those conversations. Heart to Heart is a time set aside for those who want more.

What is Heart to Heart Express?

“Express” is Heart to Heart summarized and more accessible. For the first time, the Barnabas Center is offering Heart to Heart without the required Saturday night hotel stay and wrap-up on Sunday morning. The intention of the weekend is the same. The cost in time and money is less. The impact on you and your marriage is great.
